someone who is not white or not white enough" and similar "never" statements? So why do people fear to hire someone who is of a different background? This is perhaps one of the most difficult questions of any kind. Mostly because of a closed mind. Where does this close mindedness come from? Where does it start? When do we first realize that our fellow person is not our enemy? This is my short answer to this question. Below you will find my short answer and some thoughts on the circumstances surrounding that closed mindedness. I am sure that my research, experience and understanding of this subject may help you also to be more open minded and not afraid to hire someone of a different background. People with a closed mind do not want to change, and they resist change. They fear change because they do not understand it. They fear change because they do not see the benefits, and they do not want to change. They have an attitude of "you are not worth it, and why should I waste my time?" or "you will never treat me like that." People with a closed mind feel and behave differently from how they would from the very beginning. They start with an attitude that "I will never change" and you can see this in their attitude and behavior. During a coaching session for a group of people with a closed mind, someone posed the question of "What do you want to change?" It was a big surprise to them that there are so many people who want to change. The reason why they closed their minds is usually because they are afraid to change. People with a closed mind are also afraid to learn, to grow, to make mistakes and to fail. Therefore, they never learn or grow, because it is too painful for them to fail. Failure is alien to them. They may not even be able to

GAME PLAY STYLE • Riding: Tame the horse, climb, and explore As a typical MMO, you can enjoy the game by taming a horse and riding it to enter and explore different maps and areas. • Charm: Use your charm when interacting with other players Like in FFXI, use charm to interact with other players. Furthermore, your charm can be enhanced by the game's EXP gain, and the effects of the charm increase with your charm level. • Dual Wield: Brandish a wide range of weapons and attack Like in FFXI, use a dual-wield system to attack more powerful enemies in more complex three-dimensional designs. Your weapon is boosted when you hold the right key when using it. You can switch between weapons by pressing the W button. • Swift Mobility: Explore the area at high speed Also like FFXI, you can use the Swift Mobility function to quickly move around the map by looking for shortcuts. • Stamina: Power management & Endurance Although your character isn't equipped with magic, you can use Endurance to protect yourself from harm and reduce the damage dealt to you in battle. As your Endurance decreases, you can use your vitality points to temporarily increase your health or skills' level. * Character CUSTOMIZATION • Appearance You can change the appearance of your character by selecting from a variety of models. You can further customize your character's appearance by equipping different types of armor and accessories. • Character Build The character build system lets you freely alter your character's appearance. Various combinations of pieces of equipment allow you to build your character's attributes, such as increased Strength, Dexterity, Stamina, Magic, and Endurance. CHARACTER CREATION • The Lands Between The Lands Between is divided into three regions: Skyforged (the world of light), Dustforged (the world of wind), and Stoneforged (the world of earth). Skyforged, Dustforged, and Stoneforged are connected via bridges, with different experiences and quests found in each area. • Dungeoneering Dungeoneering is the process of discovering the game's quests. There are various quests for players to discover and complete in the three areas. • Quests In addition to the main quests that players must complete, there are a wide variety of quests that will appear in the game that players

Total War is at its best when you're playing with the best team, so I asked men of the world to share their own thoughts on the best Total War games and why they're so great. Gameplay Total War: Shogun 2, AoE II by Croteam The total war genre and real-time strategy need each other. In AoE II, tiny decisions made in the crazy world of the battlefield, such as the use of archers, can massively affect the game and total War: shogun 2 is a superb example of this. In realtime strategy games, you have lots of possibility to customise many aspects of your forces, such as units, equipment, formations and so on. Gameplay Omega Online by Sparkypie Games Aliens vs. humans action, like 40,000 games of War Games on the holodisk. Guess how insane this level of interactivity makes Total War. After each victory, aliens upgrade their ships and deploy new tactics with disturbing ass-kicking. Aliens will activate different types of ships, such as the deploying of submarines, wall of death bulldozers and laser drones. You have also to watch out for exploitation of the vulnerable civil population. Scrutinising every alien advanced unit, you can use different wave counts to react differently to their combat tactics. Your choices are taken note of. The end of the game can take hours. Gameplay Rome: Total War by The Creative Assembly The Total War series is an ever evolving set of beastly engrossing games. After Rome: Total War, I headed for Rome II. And the dots were connect. This game is so visceral, so immersive, that it forms a whole new experience. Whilst Rome:Total War presents a gritty view of ancient decadence, Rome II drapes you as opulent as the Baroque period, making the rich waterways of the Eternal City breathtaking. Whereas in Total War a battle would last minutes in small skirmishes in the city streets, taking place

3.4.4. Structural stability {#sec3.4.4} The structural stability of the nanoparticles was studied by monitoring the zeta potential and particle size after storage for 1 week. Fig. 10{ref-type="fig"} shows the particle size and the zeta potential of each sample maintained at 4 °C after 7 days. The particle sizes were the same for all nanoparticles studied, and they were stable. The average zeta potentials were positive due to the presence of NH_3^+ cations. The stability of the nanoparticles prepared in this work was good. The levels of the ANOVA showed that there was no significant effect on the particles prepared from all solvents. Fig. 10 Particle size and zeta potential before and after 7 days of storage of nanoparticles in storage temperature of 4 °C. Fig. 10
