UNIVERSITY PARK - Ron Crook, University Park's high school head football coach, and a linebacker on the Alabama Crimson Tide's 2015 squad, died Tuesday, Dec. 7. He was 53. Crook was in a serious car accident on Monday night that resulted in his death, Alabama Football confirmed. A cause of death has not been established, but it is not believed to be due to the accident. Born in Florida, he played football at Moulton High School in Moulton. He was inducted into Moulton High's hall of fame in 2011. Crook played defensive back at Alabama from 1987 to 1990. He finished his career having recovered two fumbles as a safety. Crook served as head football coach at University Park for the past two seasons. His 2009 Tigers finished 7-4, including a 5-3 record in District 7-5A. He was named District Coach of the Year that season. On the field, University Park finished its 7-4 season by beating rival Brookwood 14-13 on Dec. 1 to end a seven-game losing streak. UPDATES: Alabama coach Nick Saban released a statement: "The Alabama football family is deeply saddened to learn of the passing of Ron Crook. Coach

Crook had a fundamental, unifying impact in the life of everyone who knew him. He and his family are in our thoughts and prayers." Crook's employer, University Park, released a statement: "The University of Alabama will honor Ron Crook's many contributions to this program and to the University Park community with a moment of silence prior to its game against Minnesota tonight." Alabama head coach Nick Saban appeared on the SEC coaches' teleconference on Tuesday. Saban was asked about Crook and said: "It's a difficult loss for all of us, not just at the University of Alabama, but for all of Alabama fans. "I think my thoughts are really with his family, with the University Park community, the people that had been really important to him in his life. "We will honor his contributions to the University of Alabama, and we'll do everything we can to try to be as good

Fifa 22 Features Key:

- Progression for Players and Clubs Sports Interactive engineers have fully embraced the new player progression system. Not only are new players now able to personalise their character through in-game training, but you'll see enhanced gameplay effects depending on your performance! Every tackle, each interception, every intentional foul and every successful tackle come alive in the game when you make big saves.
- FIFA 22 focuses on excitement through control and game pacing. According to Digital Trends, "The more game feels like a sim game, the more people buy the game." This new control scheme, with a better feeling of boot down and touch passes and more responsiveness, will help your players feel the pressure. Fans can also be able to build a virtual-reality stadium and follow their team in their surroundings. Whether it's watching big games, checking out scores of local games or cheering on your team, nothing is more exciting than being able to control your team from any angle at any time.
- FIFA 22 introduces "HyperMotion Technology," which uses motion capture data collected from a number of real-life players that have been in motion capture suits participating in a full, high-intensity football match, including a celebration at full tilt, to power FIFA gameplay. This includes Player AI, which has been enhanced to react and respond like a real player, accurate player models that can move and breathe in more realistic ways, and the introduction of four player 2-on-2 matches.
- Dynamic Tactics - Use Tactical Defending to make sure your team does what it needs to do! Defending is more interactive than ever, as you can press the "Defend" button to dynamically emulate switching your coverage, controlling it by hand, or calling a second defender to push forward and help out. Even if you don't have an X or square button to tap, you can now press buttons to change positions and switch your defenders automatically, while Dictating your Passing, Tackling, Interceptions, and GK Mapping will ensure that you can make the pass, tackle, or intercept with the intensity and players you want.
- Improved Grass System - All players' movements feel more realistic when they track grass, with players feeling as though they're floating in the air when they're on the pitch. You won't want to be anywhere but on the pitch with players that
