users can create their own modules using a variety of java programming languages. the software includes built-in modules to capture, analyze and display data on all ocean optics spectrometers and devices. it also features several built-in modules to access and manipulate raw data from the devices. spectrasuite is always evolving, providing new capabilities and features. the new version 7.2 includes enhancements and new features to improve usability, increase the breadth of the applications functionality and simplify several menu screens. due to the time required to make changes to any software, each release is offered both as a download and as an available upgrade to the current version. please see the "news and announcements" section of this website for the most current information regarding software upgrades. spectrasuite is for evaluation purposes only and should not be used for determining the functionality of the usb2000 and usb1010 spectrometers. there is no warranty or guarantee by ocean optics that this product will work. my 4th spectrometer (my 3th wasn't working) finally arrived yesterday, and will be given to the employee who lost it a year ago, then i will move on to the 5th spectrometer. i am hoping for a success with this one, as it was given to a previous engineer who did not do anything with it. i did install the software on a win 7 64-bit computer, following the instructions on the installation page, except that there is a password on the page that i don't have. after installing the software, i saw the spectrometer in the list of computers in ocean optics spectrasuite, but it is not a spectrometer. i can still retrieve data from it in other software, so i'm thinking that i need to check something in ocean optics spectrasuite, because nothing is showing up with the 4th spectrometer.

while this is a quick solution it is only for those who already have the usb drivers. i received a call on the first of july from a guy that wanted to test my overture. i gave him the link and he said that it would not work because he already had the newer drivers. i told him that it worked fine on a vista and windows 7 system. he was confused because he had installed the recent drivers. i guess he installed them by accident. since a lot of people are posting that their installation is failing and ask about which file to run first. i guess i just wanted to save it in case someone is looking for it, here it is. to figure out which files to run first, just open the one with the.exe extension and run it. 1. when the installer starts, follow the on-screen instructions. it will automatically check your computer for any previously installed software packages and will notify you if any are missing. if it finds any missing packages, it will display a message box prompting you to install them. you can postpone this step if you want. 2. double-click the file named "oceandivers.pkg" to open the package installer. it will automatically check your mac's software updates and perform any necessary system updates. when it is finished, you will be prompted to restart your computer. oceanview - a free graphical tool that turns lab data into a graphical diagram. if you need a tool to understand your data, it's here.oceanview is a free, open-source graphic tool for visualizing optical measurements (scopes, spectrometers, microscopes). designed for scientists, educators, and students alike, oceanview allows you to quickly and easily turn tables of lab data into visual representations -> simplicity.
