So, it is the easiest and fastest way to create new layers without proper selection. You can select a portion of the image. The selection can be circles, ellipses, squares, rectangles, or freehand touches. When you do this, the inactive objects are automatically moved out of the way. If you need to move the whole object in that position, you can do that by dragging. You can select both white and black objects on a layer. When you do that, it creates a selection that encompasses both of them. So, you can perform actions on the whole object. You can make use of the Smart Brush to fine-tune the selection.
