According to a source, the Illini are in advanced talks to add Michigan State quarterback Connor Cook. If Cook is added, it would be a move to keep Cook, but an upgrade over the previous quarterbacks and a departure from the physical style of offense former coach Tim Beckman played in. The source added that Cook's addition would be an "advanced talking point." Cook was a walk-on for Michigan State and was a highly-touted quarterback coming out of high school. The main sticking point is the money and size of the contract Cook wants. Illinois is not paying the money, according to the source, but Cook does want his deal to be similar to Texas A&M's Nick Starkel, who signed for $36 million. A source said Illinois is willing to start at $3 million and step up in increments as the deal goes along. Both Cook and Starkel are considered projects and are not likely to work out of the gate, but will improve significantly in a year or two. Cook also has been in contact with Oklahoma and Tennessee, but he's expected to stay in East Lansing. Cook, from Sherman Oaks, Calif., won the Big Ten Freshman of the Year Award and was second to Wisconsin's Russell Wilson in the Manning Award voting. He also was a finalist for the Maxwell Award and Walter Camp Award. Cook accounted for 2,958 passing yards and 21 touchdowns in 2013. Cook also rushed for 616 yards and 10 touchdowns. Illinois signed four quarterbacks in the 2014 class and has two more currently enrolled. Cole Barr (Farlington H.S.) and Sam Rovetto (Von Millikin) are redshirt freshmen who have the most time and appear to be the team's second quarterbacks. Illinois also has signed three quarterbacks in the class of 2015 (Thomas Carroll of California, Rashad Vaughn of South Orange, N.J., and Chris Coyle of LaGrange).Q: Remove empty rows from a huge txt file
